*MASTER'S PROGRAM IN ECONOMIC AND PUBLIC POLICY
(PEPP)*

Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences

University of Tsukuba Tsukuba Science City, Japan

SPONSORED BY THE JOINT JAPAN/WORLD BANK GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM AND BY THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK-JAPAN SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

To provide, within the time frame of 18 months, training and the necessary skills for the conception, design, and implementation of development policies. Our focus is on International Development with a trans-disciplinary approach to the economic and social problems of developing and transition countries. We endeavor to contribute to the creation of an international community of highly trained professionals addressing the daily challenges of economic and social development. Participants from previous cohorts have taken up prestigious positions back in their home countries, some as policy managers, others as researchers or scholars in academic institutions. We expect, together with our sponsoring institutions, the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank, many more talented and motivated professionals to join us and to apply their newly enhanced knowledge and skills to help accelerate the pace of economic and social development in their countries.

SKILL FORMATION

We target mid-career professionals with a solid university education and working experience in areas related to policymaking. The Program is determined to maintain its well-deserved reputation, particularly in imparting a considerable amount of knowledge and skills in a relatively short span of time, and in striving to ensure that its participants are highly motivated and possess the necessary level of intellectual maturity. We also expect our students to have a clear view of the problematic of their respective countries, in particular, in the context of globalization and accelerated technological change.

CAREER PROSPECTS

The Program in Economic and Public Policy offers two courses: the Course in Economic Policy and the Course in Public Policy. The former is aimed at candidates who need sound knowledge of economics in making policy decisions, while the latter is aimed at candidates who need knowledge in political science, international relations and sociology in making such decisions. The two courses were established with the specific goal of reaching out to a wider group of professionals in developing countries. PEPP is integrated into the curriculum of the Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences of the University of Tsukuba and, more specifically, into that of its Master's Program in International Area Studies.

Nguyen Ngoc QUYNH is a Social Protection Program Analyst at the United Nations Population Fund in Hanoi, Vietnam. She was a scholar in the 5th cohort (2003-5) of the Program.

I was admitted to the Master's Program in Policy Development in 2003. Studying in this program has changed my life and turned my career completely toward a bigger horizon. The program offers high quality education and training, ranking among the best programs in Japan. I learned a lot from this program, having chances to study and work with excellent professors in a multicultural environment. I think this has played an important role in my career development in an international environment after graduation. And it has been the keystone for my current work at the United Nations. Besides, the University of Tsukuba, with its broad curriculum and modern library, could provide students the opportunity to interact with various disciplines, and access to high-ranking journals and fully updated academic works. Last but not least, the beautiful, tranquil and peaceful city of Tsukuba has been a home for me and made me feel very comfortable for living and studying. Studying in this program has indeed made my life become more successful and more valuable. I would say being in this Program was one of the most remembered and valuable times of my life.

Adam Chamunorwa MUPINDA, from Zimbabwe, is a scholar in the 11th cohort (2015-17) of the Program

The credibility that a PEPP qualification affords and the skills it cultivates are certainly going to be key assets for my future career development and will give me an urge to become an economic change agent for my country and the region at large. Understanding the political economy at an international level and the social thought process, which is one of the thrusts of the PEPP program, is a major asset. The PEPP program curriculum is well designed and well acclaimed by alumni. It is an honour to be a World Bank Scholar in this program with so many distinguished professors. With the benevolence of the World Bank and the Japanese government, I also got the opportunity to be part of a study trip to Okinawa and of an invaluable "homestay" with a Japanese family, which served as an eye opener into the Japanese culture. The Japanese lessons in a friendly atmosphere were also invaluable. I sincerely hope more and more aspiring colleagues from developing countries will find their way to the University of Tsukuba and avail of this opportunity of a lifetime.

PEPP SCHOLARS AND ALUMNI

Och DANGAASUREN, from Mongolia, is a scholar in the 11th cohort (2015-17) of the Program.

I was very fortunate to achieve one of my lifetime goals – pursuing graduate studies here at the University of Tsukuba as a scholar of the PEPP program funded by the Asian Development Bank. I love the environment of Tsukuba, especially around the University, which is quiet, peaceful, and beautiful. As a PEPP scholar, you will gain vast new knowledge and experience through regular and intensive courses. You will hear from the professors with a lot of expertise in their research fields. Working with these professors provides you with a great opportunity to enhance your theoretical, empirical and cultural understandings. Apart from the course work, you will experience domestic study trips which will enhance your empirical skills. Also, you will meet students from all over the world, make friends, and learn from them. Sharing experiences with other students has been among my most memorable moments. The PEPP scholarship will be one of your best opportunities to obtain a graduate degree here in Japan and I urge you not to miss this great opportunity.

Reshmi KUMARI, from Fiji, was a scholar in the 10th cohort (2013-15) of the Program.

I am a proud Economics scholar of PEPPM at Tsukuba University. I entered this Program through the Asian Development Bank funded Japan Scholarship Program. The core thing about this program is that it offers both International Public Policy and Economics courses taught by prominent Professors. This is one of the top Universities in Japan located in the beautiful City of Tsukuba about 45 minutes by train from Tokyo. There are opportunities to explore many social activities, enjoy the beautiful environment and experience the culture of Japan apart from studying. Being a student in this Program gives you a new view and a new perspective to advance your career by encouraging new ideas through collaborative discussions in classrooms, presentations in Seminars and educational trips. I highly recommend applying and taking advantage of this awesome opportunity and benefit from a network of students from many countries around the world.

THE CITY OF TSUKUBA

Tsukuba Science City, where the University of Tsukuba is located, offers rich physical and human resources in a combination that is rare elsewhere in Japan. The city and its surrounding area abound with natural beauty, with Lake Kasumigaura to the east and Mount Tsukuba to the north. More than 200 government and private research institutes dot the city, which was planned under government supervision and designed as a comprehensive research and housing complex. With an estimated population of 200 thousand, Tsukuba is located 60 km northeast of Tokyo and 40 km northwest of the New Tokyo International Airport in Narita. The silent beauty of the Pacific Ocean beaches is about 40 km away, and the nearest majestic peaks of the Japanese Alps are no farther than 120 km. The trip to Tsukuba from Tokyo, by train, takes just 45 minutes. Direct regular bus services link Tsukuba to Narita airport in about 70 minutes, to Haneda airport in about 120 minutes, to Tokyo station in about 75 minutes, as well as to Kyoto, Osaka and other cities.

THE TSUKUBA CONCEPT

The University of Tsukuba was established in Tsukuba Science City in October 1973 as the first comprehensive university set up under Japan's country-wide university reform plan. The University promotes scientific research and cultural exchange, and aims to develop scholars with creative minds, and a deep regard for people and our planet. It strives to create a unique, vibrant and internationally competitive university that offers superior education and research facilities, and graduates people capable of dealing sensitively with our era of change. Under a new administration guided by the "New Systems for Education and Research," the University features a cosmopolitan spirit of openness. This is reflected in our diversity, which counts more than 2,300 international students among a total student population of 16,000. This has resulted in our being ranked by the Times Higher Education World University Rankings 2015-2016 as No.1 in Japan in international outlook.

THE CURRICULUM

The Program aims to educate participants who will devote themselves, in their professional life, to vigorous participation in activities related to the economic and social development of their own countries and regions. These include policymaking positions in government and other institutions of interest, as well as research, teaching and training positions in academic and educational institutions. We expect participants of the Program to assume leading development roles.

The division of the Program into the Course in Economic Policy and the Course in Public Policy is intended to provide curricula tailored to a variety of orientations of the participants. The two programs differ mainly in methodologies. The Course in Economic Policy approaches public policy, and economic and social issues through economics. The Course in Public Policy approaches these issues through political science, international relations and sociology. It needs to be stressed, however, that in accordance with the spirit of the Program, the curriculum and related activities are organized in such a way as to encourage interaction between participants in both Courses. We believe that this will lead to a richer learning experience for all participants.

In accordance with the stated aims of the Program, the curriculum is designed in such a way as to provide advanced academic and research skills. Participants in the Program are required to complete 30 credits from the listing of subjects offered by each of the two Courses (in Economics and in Public Policy). These include a fixed number of mandatory subjects specific for each Course. Participants from each Course will, however, be able to choose elective subjects from either of the two Course listings, to the extent that is allowed by the rules of the Graduate School.

In addition, participants will be required to take a set of basic subjects during their first two semesters and to write a Master's thesis in their last semester. Each student will have an advisor, who will supervise thesis work and provide counsel on academic endeavors. Participants are encouraged to consult with their advisors whenever they feel they should do so. Our faculty comprises scholars from a substantial variety of disciplines and with a wide range of research interests. Among the disciplines represented in the Graduate School are economics, political science, international law, history, sociology and anthropology. The Graduate School emphasizes high quality advising and encourages faculty to make themselves available for advisory work as often as possible.

Teaching at the University of Tsukuba takes place two semesters a year (see the flowchart). Most courses meet once or twice a week, with sessions of 75 minutes each.
